DECEMBER 9th, 1756. [Numb. 1173.]

The SOUTH-CAROLINA Gazette.

CHARLES-TOWN, Dec. 9.

THE two French Privateers (mentioned in our laſt) taken by Capt Beake, of New-Providence, had 30 Men each, and were lying under Eleuthera, to intercept ſome of our ſtragling Homeward bound Jamaica Ships —We hear, that Capt. Beake has alſo driven a French Veſſel aſhore on Magnana, out of which he was taking the Cargo.

Letters by the laſt Poſt from Cape Fear, mention a Report of an Engagement between Lord Loudoun's Army and that of the French near Crown Point, in which his Lordſhip was ſaid to have gained the Victory, and that he had loſt an Arm; but that, as no other Circumſtances were mentioned, 'twas not much credited.

We have at laſt received an Account, that the Sloop Unity, Clement Conyers Maſter, from Jamaica for this Port, was taken by the French, and carried into Port au Prince.

We have alſo an Account that the Martinico and St. Domingo Homeward bound Fleets, having joined at Cape François, to the Number of 500 Sail, inſtead of going Home in March next (as was imagined or they were told in Antigua) ſailed from thence 31 Days ago, under Convoy of 13 Ships of the Line and 2 Frigates: And that two New York Privateers fell in with them the Night after they left the Cape, took one of the Fleet and were determined to purſue the reſt even to Europe, 'till they got as many of them as they could man.

Monſ. Palankie, (a famous Cruzier among the Weſt India Iſlands laſt War) we hear, is fitting out a fine Privateer Brigt. at Cape François, with an Intent to viſit this Coaſt about Chriſtmas; having been adviſed the ſame by his Lieutenant, who is ſaid to be married in this Province, and probably may be Mr. de la Chappelle.

By Capt Strachan from Dundee, there is Advice, that the Friendſhip, Samuel Ball Maſter, from this Port for London, was taken by a French Privateer, but the Ship afterwards retaken.

Capt. Hooper from Antigua, mentions two London Ships being taken and carried into Martinico ſince the Liſt inſerted in our laſt, the Maſters Names Finch and Conolly and alſo a Ship from North-America, called the Longueville.

On Tueſday laſt put in here, the Ship Advice, John Peadle Maſter, from Plymouth, bound for Cape Fear. —Capt Peddle has been out but 48 Days, and reports, that when he left England great Rejoicings were making here, for ſome Victory obtained by the King of Pruſſia in Germany.

A Subſcription is at length ſet on Foot here, for fitting out a ſtout Privateer, the Command of which we hear will be given to Capt. Clement Lempriere, whoſe Courage and Activity is pretty well known, having diſtinguiſhed himſelf in the laſt War more than once.

We do not hear of any Advices being lately received from Teneſee that can be depended on, except that the Cherokee's there continue to give Capt. Demaré the ſtrongeſt Aſſurances of Friendſhip.

Daniel Pepper, Eſq; the Agent from this Government to the Creek's, is arriv'd and well in the Upper Nation: But no Advices have yet been received directly from him.

Since our laſt, the French Prizes brought in here before the Declaration of War have been condemned.

Leſt the Practice of firing Small-Arms in the Night (too common in this Town about Chriſtmas), ſhould at ſome time or other prove of bad Conſequence, by putting us off our Guard, we hear, Orders are given for putting ſtrictly in Execution the Act of Aſſembly whereby it is forbid.

There are at this Time 18 Ships, 15 Snows, 13 Sloops, 10 Schooners, and 4 Brigantines, in this Harbour, making together 60 Sail; of which two are Men of War.

☞ MOSES LINDO gives this public Notice, that he is arrived from London, with an Intent to purchaſe INDICO of the Growth and Manufacture of this Province, and to remit the ſame to his Conſtituents in London, claſſed, ſorted, and packed in a Manner proper for the Foreign Market. — If any are deſirous to know upon what Credit, and to what Extent he purpoſes to carry on this Branch of Buſineſs, he begs Leave to refer them for Particulars to Mr. John Rattray, who is poſſeſſed of his Papers, and to whom he is recommended.

SUPPLEMENT To

The SOUTH-CAROLINA Gazette.

[Numb. 1173.] DECEMBER 11th, 1756.

From the UNIVERSAL MAGAZINE for SEPTEMBER, 1756.

COLIN, August 27.

THE army now aſſembling in the neighbourhood of this place, will, when compleat, be as formidable as any the Auſtrians have had for a long time paſt. It is to conſiſt of 19 regiments of foot, of 4 battalions each, and 2 companies of grenadiers, 16 regiments of dragoons and cuiraſſiers, and 4 regiments of huſſars, beſides 20,000 Croatians and Sclavonians: And the camp that is forming at Olliſchan, is to conſiſt of 5 regiments of foot, one of dragoons, 3 of cuiraſſiers, and 2 of huſſars. This army is to be commanded in chief by veldt marſhal count Brown, who is to have 1 general of foot, viz. prince Piccolomini, 7 lieutenant field-marſhals, and 16 major generals, to act under him.

Leipſic, Sept. 1. Sunday about 10 in the morning a body of 15,000 Pruſſian troops entered this city very unexpectedly, and after taking poſſeſſion of the gates, placed guards at the town houſe, the caſtle, and the public offices. The main guard was placed at the market place, where they planted 12 pieces of cannon: Soon after theſe troops entered the town, we were informed, that 4 more Pruſſian regiments were arrived on the glacis, and cantoned near the gate of Hall. The inhabitants in their conſternation occaſioned by this unexpected event, did not open either ſhops or houſes, on monday morning; but at 10 o'clock prince Ferdinand of Bruſwick, who commanded the Pruſſian troops, publiſhed the following declaration or manifeſto, containing his Pruſſian majeſty's motives for entering Saxony.

" AS the unjuſt conduct which the court of Vienna hath hitherto obſerved towards his majeſty the king of Pruſſia, and the dangerous views of that court againſt his majeſty's dominions, lay him under a neceſſity of taking proper meaſures for protecting his territories and ſubjects againſt the ſtorm with which they are threatened, by an enemy who hath rejected with contempt all propoſals of friendſhip; his Pruſſian majeſty, from a juſt conſideration of the prejudice which might reſult from the intentions of the court of Vienna towards him could not forbear taking the diſagreeable reſolution to march his troops into the hereditary dominions of his majeſty the king of Poland, elector of Saxony.—His majeſty proteſts before God and man, that on account of his perſonal eſteem and friendſhip for the king of Poland, elector of Saxony, he would not have proceeded to this extremity, had he not been forced to it by the laws of war, the fatality of the preſent conjuncture, and the neceſſity of providing for the defence and ſecurity of his ſubjects. —The events of the year 1744, in which his Pruſſian majeſty employed the power that the providence of of God hath put into his hands, to hinder the court of Vienna from ſubjecting the Germanic empire to her yoke, and oppreſſing its head, are ſtill freſh in memory. All the world knows, the tenderneſs which his majeſty ſhewed towards the court of Saxony during the campaign of that year; the bad conſequences that court felt from its engagements with his majeſty's enemies; its furniſhing troops to aſſiſt in invading his territories in Sileſia; and entering into the ſcheme for attacking him in the center of his dominions, and even in his capital —The apprehenſion of being again expoſed to ſuch enterprizes, has laid his Pruſſian majeſty under a neceſſity of being upon his guard, and of taking, in his preſent ſituation, thoſe precautions which prudence dictates. As to the reſt, as it is againſt his inclination that he ſees himſelf forced to march his troops into the territories of Saxony, he hath thought proper to declare in the moſt ſolemn manner, as well to his majeſty the king of Poland, as to all Europe, that he was not induced to take this ſtep by any hoſtile views againſt his Poliſh majeſty or againſt his dominions; aſſuring with great ſincerity, that his troops enter not Saxony as enemies, that he marches them into it only for his own ſafety, and that of his dominions; and that he hath given orders, that they ſhall obſerve, agreeably to his royal intentions, the beſt order and the moſt exact diſcipline —After the urgent motives which have conſtrained his Pruſſian majeſty, againſt his will, to take this ſtep, he deſires nothing more ardently than the happy minute that ſhall procure him the ſatisfaction of reſtoring to his majeſty the king of Poland, his hereditary dominions, which the king hath not ſeized, and doth not occupy, but a depoſit which is, and always ſhall be, ſacred to him."

Major Winderbec having given notice on ſunday night, in the king of Pruſſia's name, to the deputies of the corporation of merchants, that they were to pay all taxes and cuſtoms only to the order of his Pruſſian majeſty, the deputies waited on prince Ferdinand of Brunſwick next morning at 11 o'clock, who received them very politely, repeated to them that from that day all contributions were to be paid to the king of Pruſſia and not to his Poliſh majeſty's and aſſured them, that they might depend on his friendſhip, protection, and care to maintain good order. The ſame day that prince took poſſeſſion of the cuſtom houſe and the exciſe office; and ordered the magazines of corn and meal to be opened for the uſe of his troops.

This day the Pruſſian troops that were in this town marched towards the frontiers of Bohemia, and are immediately to be joined by two other columns, which when united will form an army of about 40 000 men.

Dreſden, Sept 5. All the Saxon army is aſſembled in the camp near Pirna, where they have thrown up an intrenchment, and are provided with a great number of cannon, and all ſorts of military ſtores. The burgeſſes of this city are all under arms

Dreſden, Sept. 6. We learn from Halle, that a conſiderable body of Pruſſian troops are arrived in that neighbourhood with a large train of artillery.

Dreſden, Sept. 12 His Poliſh majeſty and the princes Xaverius and Charles, were on tueſday the 7th inſt. at Struppen, within the compaſs of the Saxon camp, between Pirna and Konigſtein, but the Pruſſian huſſars have now cut off all communication between this city and them. On wedneſday the 8th, the Pruſſians pitched their camp near this city, and his Pruſſian majeſty himſelf took his quarters at Wilſdrup. The next day, the line that had marched thro' Upper Luſatia, croſſed the Elbe upon pontoons at Loſchwitz, and entered into the camp near Wilſdrup. The ſame day, in the morning, 5 battalions took poſſeſſion of this capital. That night his Pruſſian majeſty lay at the counteſs Mocz nſka's garden. On the 10th, at 5 in the morning, the greateſt part of the Pruſſian army marched in order towards the Saxon camp, and the head quarters now are at Seidlitz not above half a German mile diſtant from Pirna, whilſt the whole camp is ſaid to extend itſelf, on the right hand, almoſt to the frontiers of Bohemia. That day one regiment of cuiraſſiers, and 3 of dragoons, march'd thro' this city into the camp near Wilſdrup, where a body of 16,000 men is ſtill left. The cavalry is extremely well mounted.

The Pruſſian gariſon here has ſet centries at every paſs where the Saxons formerly kept guard, and obſerve as exact and ſtrict a diſcipline as is poſſible.

London, Sept 13. Notwithſtanding the great height that admiral Byng is lodg'd in Greenwich hoſpital, an order was given on thurſday laſt, to have iron bars fixed fixed to all the windows of his apartment, and the chimney of his room so secured that any attempt to escape might be rendered impossible. There is likewise an additional guard always with him, and he is not even permitted to go forth to the necessary house, having a convenience in the same room for that purpose. Many are of opinion, that his being guarded thus is owing to the arrival of Col. Jeffreys, the brave defender of Minorca.

London Sept 16. The Unicorn man of war, of 20 guns, capt Gibbeth, after a smart engagement, has taken and brought to Plymouth, a French privateer of 22 guns, 9 pounders, with 220 men; the deck of the privateer was a mast covered with the bodies of dead and wounded men when she struck, none having been removed during the time of the engagement.

London, Sept 18. In pursuance of his majesty's proclamation, the parliament, which stood prorogued to this day, is further prorogued to the 18th of November; then to sit for the dispatch of business.

LONDON, August 31.

LAST week a vessel was dispatched for Gibraltar, with some orders of great importance for the governor; immediately upon the delivery of which she is to sail to deliver a packet to Sir Edward Hawke; this vessel has some engineers on board to reinforce his fleet.

London, Sept 2. We hear, that admiral Byng was detected this morning, about 1 o'clock, attempting to make his escape, by means of a ship's ladder (said to be sent him in the bottom of a hamper of wine) fastened to one of the windows of his room. He had made the centinel drunk, in order the better to secure his retreat, and the person in the room with him being seized asleep, encouraged him to make the attempt.

London, Sept 3. From the present train of affairs in general, there is reason to apprehend that the war will be of longer continuance, and productive of greater consequences than were expected some months ago.

The camp at Byfleet, near Cobham in Surry, is daily resorted to by numbers of people; and what greatly adds to the beauty of it, is, that about a quarter of a mile distant from it, there is a regular castle of earth thrown up in imitation of fort St. Philip, almost surrounded with a deep ditch, which, when completed, is intended to be manned within by a good number of matrosses, who are to defend it by firing of powder only, at others who are to make a sham siege without and take it.

London, Sept. 6. We hear that admiral Byng will not be called upon to account for his conduct in the Mediterranean 'til after the meeting of the parliament, when it will be inquired into by impeachment.

People in general are in great expectation, something will be done this next session of parliament effectually to prevent the sending for foreign troops upon every trifling occasion, or flam of an invasion.

London, Sept 8. Baron Gemmingen, minister from his majesty as elector of Hanover, has deliver'd a memorial to the diet of Ratisbon, relating to the present state of affairs.

From Paris they write, that the Spaniards want us to exchange Gibraltar for Oran.

London, Sept. 9. The king of Prussia, 'tis said, raises no contributions, and only obliges the Saxons to maintain the troops he has marched amongst them. From Leipsick, which the accounts mention as his head quarters, to Dresden, which is the capital, is little more than 100 miles; and Dresden is within 15 miles of Bohemia. This was the Prussian rout in the last war, when his majesty took Prague. He knows the way and before had his head quarters at the palace of Dresden.

The king of Prussia instead of waiting for the tedious delays of negotiation, has sent notice at once, to the elector of Cologn to provide winter quarters for 40,000 of his troops. ——This will prevent the French making use of this country in order to march up into the empire early in the spring, and 'tis presumed they will not venture to send their armies into the Prussian duchies of Cleves, &c. without leave.

It is not doubted, but the Dutch will soon be intimidated so as to mend their manners, as the Prussian territories run almost into the very heart of their country, and are not secured against by any frontier of strength. A Prussian minister has made a peremptory demand of an answer to, What part they will take in case of an open rupture between the king his master and France, and has only given them 8 days to make it in.

The king of Prussia takes advantage of the season, which is now too far advanced for the French to send assistance to their new ally, even if there were no impediments in their way, before the middle of next summer.

It is confidently said, that 8 regiments of foot, and 3 battalions of the guards are speedily to embark, but their destination is at present a secret.

Tuesday last being the birth day of the truly hon. lieut. gen. BLAKENEY, it was distinguished as it deserved, by ringing of bells, firing of guns, illumination of houses, and bonfires.

Ten pieces of fine brass cannon, from 50 to 60 hundred weight, with their carriages, were on tuesday brought to the Tower wharf, and are in a day or two to be shipped for the Mediterranean, with many others of a larger size.

On tuesday Col. Jeffreys kiss'd his majesty's hand at Kensington, on being appointed colonel of general Fowke's regiment of foot, as a reward for his gallant behaviour at Port Mahon.

London, Sept. 10. The government has received some dispatches from Mr. Mitchell, minister at the court of Prussia, concerning the assembling 180,000 troops in alliance with Great Britain.

There are accounts from the Hague and Hamburg, that the empress of Russia has entered into the treaty of Vienna and Versailles, in consequence of which, 'tis said, she engages to hold a body of 70 000 men in readiness to march to the assistance of the two contracting powers, and promises to do the same in favour of any other power who shall accede to the said treaty; and that there are some other stipulations, at present a secret.

The regency of Hanover expect to have 60,000 men, without the Prussians; some say, the whole army, with the Prussians, amounts to 120,000.

London, Sept. 11. Our last advices from Paris say, that it has been resolved to embark immediately, and at all events, 8 battalions for Corsica, under the command of the marquis de Castries.

London, Sept. 12. There are letters in town today from on board admiral Boscawen's fleet, dated the 28th ult. which give an account that he had fallen in with a fleet of homeward bound Martinico ships, and taken 8 of them; and had also taken 11 transports, and sunk 2, which were going to Brest.

It is asserted, that the Corsicans have again desired our protection, and to make them partners of our liberty, which invitation is said to be accepted.

Some particular changes are daily expected.

We hear, that some men of war are going (or already gone) for Corsica.

An extraordinary council has been held on expresses received from the admirals Hawke and Boscawen.

We are assured, that the garison in fort St. Philip left no more than 300 men during the siege, of which number 70 were killed, and the rest taken off by sickness.

London, Sept. 14. 'Tis said, that admiral Hawke's squadron is to be reinforced to the number of 40 men of war and 18 frigates, in order, if possible, to disappoint the designs of the French.

On friday a large quantity of small-arms were shipt for Scotland.

On saturday orders of a secret nature were dispatch'd to Chatham, Portsmouth, and Plymouth; and yesterday packets were received from each of those places.

We hear, that the last express from Holland contains some particulars not satisfactory here, and were therefore required, in an answer sent thereto, to have the same more clearly explained.

We

We hear, that the hon. C—s T——d has refuſed being a lord of the treaſury.

Paris, Sept. 6. The Toulon fleet was not ſailed the 26th of Auguſt, being forced to wait for the fitting out 5 or 6 fireſhips.
